Then she found a cave. She went inside. She could barely stand up straight. She was so bored after 10 minutes. She felt so lonely. She yelled for help but no one came. She sat for a bit thinking of ways to get out. A few hours later, she had an idea, an amazing idea. It was to write SOS in big letters with rocks. (SOS stands for save our souls) Well if she can find any rocks and stones. When she was looking for the rocks and stones when she bumped into something. She looked up and there was an other Troll. A human straight away said "not another Troll come with me. I will take you back as well. We will go to my house and repair you." "OK" Trish said. So they went to the house. When they got there they got an epic makeover they had the hair done and more. She was so excited. Once they had done she looked like her self again. She found her way home and lived happily ever after.
